Home away from home

A boy stood in front of a tent in the newly built tent city in Shirat Hayam, Gaza Strip, on Wednesday. The tents were built to host nonresidents trying to come to Gush Katif to show support to the local settlers and against the pullout plan. The settlers established Shirat Hayam, one of the smallest of 21 Jewish communities in Gaza, after a deadly Palestinian attack on an Israeli school bus at the start of the Palestinian uprising four years ago.

CORRECTIONS

- A story on Page C2 Wednesday about the Gophers men's basketball team incorrectly reported an opponent for the upcoming season. The Gophers will play at Arizona State.
- A story on Page B2 Wednesday incorrectly reported what information schools are required to give military recruiters under the No Child Left Behind Act. Military recruiters are given access to schools' directory information, which typically includes students' names, addresses and telephone numbers.
- A news brief on Page A9 Wednesday incorrectly listed the century in which the artist Vincent van Gogh worked. He worked in the 19th century.
- A story in Star Tribune South on Wednesday carried incorrect information about admission to the Scott County Fair. Admission to the fair is free. Parking is $7. Admission to grandstand events is $10 for adults, $5 for children ages 6 to 12, and free for children age 5 and under.
